Dear Colleagues,

As mentioned in email bulletin 1 sent 27 September, P&F is implementing ARCHIBUS, an enterprise facilities management system, which will replace the current in-house system for the management of space and property.

The contract with the preferred supplier has been signed and work on the implementation has begun. The migration of existing space data and building floor plan drawings is the first phase with property data to follow. The integration of both these data sets will be the final phase of stage 1 of the project.

Implementation of the space and property modules is expected to be completed in early January 2012.

A project website has been developed to inform users of the project scope, status and to keep them up to date with project developments. The website is available at www.pf.uq.edu.au/archibus.

In the near future, we will be running presentations for key system users. A training plan is also being finalised.

Regards
