Dear Colleagues,

ARCHIBUS Implementation Project Update

As mentioned in previous email bulletins, P&F is implementing ARCHIBUS, an enterprise facilities management system, which replaces the current in-house system for the management of space and property.

Since my last bulletin a number of things have happened.

- An ARCHIBUS presentation was held on 29 November 2011 for Faculty Executive Officers and Institute Deputy Directors resulting in positive feedback and a number of suggestions, which have been integrated into our implementation process.
- Implementation of the space module has now been completed.
- At this stage ARCHIBUS has gone live for internal use by P&F space users.
- Work is progressing on customising the system for University users.
- Faculties, Institutes and Divisions have been asked to review their currently assigned space editors. Once finalised, a separate email will be sent to the nominated space editors about scheduling their ARCHIBUS editor training.
- Details of ARCHIBUS training is available through the UQ Staff Development website at https://staffdevelopment.hr.uq.edu.au/course/indexARCHIB

Please refer to the project website to keep up to date with project developments at www.pf.uq.edu.au/archibus.
